If you can't be there, at least let them see your face.

Using cutting edge RealPlayer™ technology, the Advanced.Seminar interface is the most effective and economical web-based seminar solution on the market.

You can show video with voice accompanied by captioning and Flash animation covering bullets on the main points discussed in the video. Flash animation can also be used to display related diagrams. Users are able to navigate the video with standard video play, reverse and fast forward buttons, or by selecting key content points in the video to view at their leisure. The captioning and presentation points will follow suit.

You remain the master of your own web content. As it should be. Advanced.Seminar is configured for implementation on your web server, which means you never have to enter agreement with a streaming host provider of any other organization. You have control over the look and feel of your web seminar and when and how it is aired. If you'd like, you can even distribute your seminar via CD ROM.
